'Legacies'

Our Lady Queen of Peace acknowledges with gratitude past legacies which we use to maintain the integrity of our Church.

Please include us in your 'LAST WILL', how will we survive without it?

Legacies are a way of providing assurance that the parish has income or savings in the event of unforeseen emergencies.

The monthly 'Building Fund and Collection' pays for maintenance/replacement items.

Development & Peace – A Voice for Justice

Here is a synopsis of an article from Ottawa. Your signing the Fall Action cards does make a difference. Over 300 pkgs of 80,000 cards addressed to nearly every Member of Parliament were packed and delivered to the Rally at the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa on May 14, 2014 for a Voice for Justice. This was the culmination of the campaign to call on the government to appoint an ombudsperson for the extractive sector to give the communities in the global south a Voice for Justice in Canada.. Buses and cars arrived with contingents from Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec City and New Brunswick. Several MPs were there to receive their postcards and show support for this action.

In addition to the rally, members of Development and Peace who attended, met with over 20 Members of Parliament to share stories of the communities in the global south living with Canadian mines on their lands and to discuss the need for an ombudsperson.

There is no doubt a Voice for Justice was heard on Parliament Hill on May 14. Thanks to all of you who participated in this campaign.

Protecting the Sacred - One Step at a Time

Please R.S.V.P to Mary at 250-727-6893 or mcarmichael@cisdv.bc.ca.

The Selection of Bishops in the Catholic Church

As the Diocese of Victoria awaits its next bishop, many are wondering just how that bishop will be chosen. Who decides who will be bishop? The short answer is “The Holy Spirit.” Christ has not abandoned his church, and continues to guide and govern her through the Holy Spirit. However, the Holy Spirit uses human beings to accomplish this governance, and another correct short answer to the question would be, “the Pope.” While it is true that the Pope can appoint any Catholic priest to be a bishop, the actual process usually involves many people.

The process essentially consists of two parts:

Identifying priests with the necessary qualities, and selecting the one who best fills a specific vacancy. Identifying the right priests The process of identifying priests with the qualities desired in a bishop is an ongoing process, even in the presence of specific vacancies. The bishops of a province (Church province & not civil province) give their archbishop the names of priests they think would make good bishops. The candidates put forward by a bishop are usually from his current diocese or from one where he has served; these are the priest he knows best.

The qualities of a bishop

The church is very explicit about the qualities that must be present in a candidate to the episcopacy. He must be “a good pastor of souls and teacher of the Faith.” The church examines whether the candidates “enjoy a good reputations; whether they are of irreproachable morality; whether they are endowed with right judgment and prudence; whether they are even-tempered and of stable character; whether they firmly hold the orthodox Faith; whether they are devoted to the Apostolic See and faithful to the magisterium of the church; whether they have a thorough knowledge of dogmatic and moral theology and canon law; whether they are outstanding for their piety, their spirit of sacrifice and their pastoral zeal; whether they have an aptitude for governing.” Consideration is also to be given to “intellectual qualities, studies completed, social sense, spirit of dialogue and cooperation, openness to the signs of the times, praiseworthy impartiality, family background, health, age and inherited characteristics.”

The provincial list Periodically:

The bishops of a province meet under the chairmanship of their archbishop to consider the names of priest who are possible candidates for the episcopacy.

At the provincial meeting, a list of candidates for the episcopacy is assembled, voted on and forwarded to the apostolic nuncio. While the nuncio could nominate for bishop someone not from this pool of candidates, and the pope could appoint any priest he wanted, most appointments come from these lists. When a diocese becomes vacant, the second part of the process gets underway – the search for the specific person who will fill a specific vacancy.

The apostolic nuncio

A nuncio represents the Holy Father to both a nation’s civil government (as ambassador) and the Catholic Church in that nation.

When vacancies occur in Canadian dioceses and a diocesan ordinary is being chosen (as opposed to an auxiliary bishop), the nuncio chooses several candidates to suggest to Rome from among the names, which have been submitted. The nuncio’s recommendations to Rome are based on his own extensive investigation of the needs of the diocese and each candidate’s suitability for the particular diocese. During his investigation the nuncio sends a confidential questionnaire on the candidate to people who know him. The questions address the physical, intellectual, moral, spiritual, social, and priestly characteristics that one would hope for in a bishop.

Those questioned include priests, religious and laity. The priest’s diocesan bishop suggests some; others are diocesan officials or people the nuncio has gotten to know personally. The laity consulted tend to be officers in diocesan lay organizations or on diocesan advisory committees. Each is told to answer the questions without consulting others. They cannot tell anyone, especially the candidate, that they have received the questionnaire.

Nuncio’s Report

After the nuncio has examined the responses to the questionnaires, he prepares the “terna,” a list of three candidates, and writes a report extracting and synthesizing the content of the consultation and giving his own judgment. The terna and the report are sent to the Congregation for Bishops in Rome, and no bishop sees them unless he is a member of that congregation. The report gives a description of the diocese, describes the process the nuncio went through in selecting the candidates, describes the candidates and gives the nuncio’s recommendations.

Congregation for Bishops

When the nuncio’s report arrives at the Congregation for Bishops, the members discuss the appointment under the chairmanship of the prefect. The congregation then votes on the candidates and attaches its own recommendations to the report.

The Pope

The final step in the appointment process occur when the prefect of the Congregation for Bishops presents the nuncio's, the congregation's, and his own recommendations to the pope in a private audience. The prefect summarizes the discussions of the congregation and reports any dissenting opinions. The pope may ask for more information about the candidates, or may even ask for other candidates to be proposed. In the end however, the pope, led by the Holy Spirit, makes the appointment.

Notification and consent

After the pope makes his decision, the nuncio is notified, who then approaches the nominee and asks if he will accept the appointment. When the candidate accepts, Rome is notified and a date is set for the announcement.

College of Consultors

Meanwhile, Fr. John Laszczyk is the Administrator of the diocese, having been elected, from among the Consultors, on January 7th. An administrator can only maintain the 'status quo.' He cannot make any decisions that will bind his successor. And, normally, he makes major decisions in consultation with the diocesan Consultors. However, if the diocese is vacant longer than one year then the Administrator has more freedom to act in consultation with the Consultors. The diocesan Consultors, as named by Bishop Richard Gagnon while he was with us, are: Fr. Marek Paczka, SDS; Fr. Paul Szczur, SDS; Fr. Alfredo Monacelli; Fr. William Hann; Fr. Rolf Hasenack, OP.

Although the process of choosing a new Bishop normally takes four to eight months, it can be much shorter or much longer. And so we wait patiently while the Holy Spirit leads the church to the best bishop possible for us.

“Come and celebrate Pentecost, the Birthday of the Church”

There will be praise, worship, a teaching, fellowship, food and refreshments - all bundled together in the Holy Spirit. We will be praying for a new Pentecost to fall on the Diocese of Victoria and the world.

Date: June 8, 2014 from 2:00pm - 4:30pm in Pope John Hall, Sacred Heart Church. 4040 Nelthorpe St, Victoria.
